

Sarah Hethcoat - Nobody Likes A Bully (Self Released)

Sarah Hethcoat is a singer songwriter out of LA who plays 70/90's rock tunes with a dash of pop. It is really actually quite good. It firstly a heck of a lot different than a lot of the singer songwriters coming out of the moment. The music is fresh catchy, well written with good lyrics. The first song I Hate You is a pop rock tune that deserves radio play with it's catchy lyrics and solid vocals with melodies and harmonies that are infectious. I Got You is straight up 70's rock with good solid vocals and melodies and solid musicianship. It really takes you back to the 70's rock sound even tho I wasn't born then. You Tease Me is probably my favorite off the CD, it's a really 90's pop rock tune that is sweetly sung, good solid vocals, melodies and harmonies that are divine with some good lyrics that really make the tune a winner. A New Day is part 90's part 70's mixed together to give a tune that is well written and well sung and a joy to listen to. Strong is a song that actually feels like it came out of 70's but splashed with a 90's edge and finish off the CD with a nice ballad number that is really refreshing to the ears. A refreshing release with a bunch of great tunes that are just totally enjoyable to listen to from an artist who is only going further.
